جَابَطَانِ اِلَّا مُلْكُهِ اِسْلَامِيَّةِ سَلَانْجُور

THANK YOU,
OUR DEAR
TEACHERS

I implore myself and call upon my beloved audience to strive in increasing our taqwa of Allah Subhaanahu Wata ‘aala with the true taqwa, and also to fulfill all of His Commands and avoid all of His prohibitions. Indeed, we truly hope to attain blissfulness in this world and the Hereafter.

Today marks the celebration for Teachers' Day with the theme being "Teachers: Triggering Creativity, Pioneering Innovation." Hence, let us altogether sincerely say, "Thank You, Our Dear Teachers."

Teachers play a significant role as agents of change that are constantly creative and innovative, always sharp and also intelligent. They would always inculcate innovation within the wave of educational transformation in producing a young generation that is capable of attaining excellence in their lives.

Educators are capable of creating opportunity for their students to enjoy a more meaningful learning experience, and creativity that could enhance the students' skills in facing the true reality of their lives. Nowadays, everyone has realized that teaching as a career is a task that is filled with challenges. Among them is the time constraint, threats of social ills, and having to confront all sorts of ideas and perspectives.

In reality, the role of the teacher from the past until now is always filled with trials and tribulations. In addition, teachers will be confronted with the challenges of teaching various types of students.

Students nowadays are exposed to various type of “foreign culture” such as excessive entertainment and others.

Hence, some would become heavily influenced, fully imitating, and even immersed in this foreign culture such as hedonism that includes excessive entertainment, fornication, intoxication, smoking, and many more. Some others would be preoccupied with online social portals either via the computer or mobile phone. All these would only make the education process hampered with greater difficulties, requiring longer duration. Such phenomenon gets even worse when the respect for teachers have increasingly diminished amongst students.

At the same time, teachers are confronted with parents lacking respect for them and quick or adamant in defending their children's actions without investigation.

Such situation leaves negative effect in the educators' efforts in developing the children's character. The parents must realize that it is they who shoulder the leading role in educating their children. The role of educating the children should not be placed fully upon the teachers. Furthermore, the teachers are only aiding in the completion of educational process. Therefore, there will exist unity and harmony between the teachers and parents having the same agenda, which is to raise children having unwavering imaan and sound knowledge.

From the hadeeth of Abu Hurayrah radiyAllaahu ‘anh, the Messenger sallAllaahu ‘alayhi wasallam said:

“No child is born except on al-Fitrah (Islam) and then his parents make him Jewish, Christian or Magian...”
(al-Bukhaari and Muslim)

The society needs to exercise its role by placing teachers in their rightful place. The icons and role models for the children today must be closely scrutinized and refined so as to not to deviate or sidetrack in selecting ones that should never be emulated. Teachers are the society's agents of change that remains istiqaamah (steadfast) in continuing the legacy of transmitting knowledge by Rasulullah sallAllahu ‘alayhi wasallam, the best teacher to be emulated. Allah Subhaanahu Wata ‘aala mentions in al-Qur’ān:

“It is He who has sent among the unlettered a Messenger from themselves reciting to them His verses and purifying them and teaching them the Book and wisdom - although they were before in clear error.”

(al-Jumu‘ah 62:2)

The complete tarbiyyah (education and training) by Rasulullah sallAllahu ‘alayhi wasallam had produced great Companions such as Abu Bakr as-Siddeeq, ‘Umar ibn al-Khattaab, ‘Uthmaan ibn

‘Affaan, ‘Ali ibn Abi Taalib, and many others having strong imaan, virtuous character, and nobility of unequaled stature radiyAllaahu ‘anhum ajma‘een.

History has revealed that the birth of great scholars of the past such as Imaam ash-Shaafi‘i and Imaam al-Ghazzaali rahimahumullaah were due to the fruits of tarbiyyah and grooming by those known as “teachers.”

Similarly, with the prominence of Sultan Muhammad al-Faatih who was successful in conquering Constantinople only at the age of 21.

He was the product of education and upbringing of great scholars who were his murabbis. Such success was prophesized by Rasulullah sallAllahu ‘alayhi wasallam as mentioned in the hadeeth:

“Verily you shall conquer Constantinople. What a wonderful leader will her leader be, and what a wonderful army will that army be!”

(Ahmad)

Therefore, the society must be cognizant and realize upon the significance of teachers in our societal living. The Arab poet said:

“Stand and give full respect to the teacher, for the task of the teacher is almost akin to the messenger’s.”

Unfortunately, these days we are witnessing how today's generation is continuing to deviate from the true Islamic akhlaaq and norms. Some students no longer regard their teacher as someone that should be respected. Moreover, some brazenly disobey, insult, threaten, and even physically assault their teachers. Such predicament is due to the absence of barakah (blessings) in the knowledge that the student had attained, even though they are taught Islamic knowledge and akhlaaq on a daily basis. What actually had went wrong?

If we were to ponder and contemplate upon the stories from the lives of the salaaf as-saalih (pious predecessors), we will realize how the early generation would heavily emphasize on the matter of adaab in seeking knowledge.

Hence, they were successful in attaining the bounties from the blessings of knowledge, which in the end produced Muslim generations that were feared and respected worldwide, including their own enemies. This is a form of strength that had borne out of the blessings of knowledge attained.

The barakah of ‘ilm resulted from the adaab of the student towards his teacher, among which is to look at the teacher with great respect and honor.

‘Ali radiyAllaahu ‘anh had once said, which means: “I am ready to become a slave to the one who is willing to teach me even if it is just one letter. If he wants, he can sell me.

If he wants, he can turn me into a slave. And if he wants, he can set me free.”

Such is the greatness of the character of great Companions of Rasulullah sallAllahu ‘alayhi wasallam. How they would honor their teacher and have great adaab with them that

Allah Subhaanahu Wata‘aala made them noble individuals in this world and the Hereafter.
From among the adaab of the student of knowledge, it is to lower oneself as a student when in front of the teacher, even if the teacher is less fortunate from the material aspect, or lesser in stature or wealth. Imaam as-Shaafi‘i rahimahullaah, though he was a scholar and erudite in his knowledge and akhlaaq, but when learning from someone even if it is a trivial matter, he would lower himself as much as he possible can in front of his teacher, and he stated:

*“I humble myself in front of them, hence they honor me.
One will not be honored by the arrogance and pride within them.”*

In concluding today's khutbah, let us recap on the main points mentioned earlier:

1. Seek knowledge for it will be a beacon towards imaan and taqwa.

2. The teacher must have sabr and ikhlaas in wading through the challenges and ills of today.
3. Elevate and emulate Rasulullah sallAllahu ‘alayhi wasallam as the best example, and the educator that is to be followed.

4. Everyone whether the government of the day, schools, teachers, parents, and societies, must firmly cooperate in producing a

Muslim ummah that is balanced both physically and spiritually.

5. The relationship between the parents, teachers, and students must be built upon respect and love so as to earn the blessings and pleasure of Allah Subhaanahu Wata‘aala.

“O you who have believed, persevere and endure and remain stationed and fear Allah that you may be successful.”

(Aal-‘Imraan 3:200)

بَارَكَ اللَّهُ لِيْ وَلَكُمْ فِي الْقُرْآنِ الْعَظِيمِ وَنَفَعَنِي وَإِيَّاكُمْ
